

POSTAL BUSINESS INCREASES 32 PCT.

Records of Postmaster Show Results of City's Gain in Population.

An increase of 32 per cent in the postal business for the month of April, May and June of this year over the corresponding months for last year in the local office is shown by the quarterly report which has just been completed by Postmaster J. J. Cunningham. The increase for the first six months of last amounts to approximately 25 per cent, showing the increase has been much more during the past few months. The first six months of the first quarter, January, February and March, amounted to $24,471, and for the next three months, April, May and June, the total for the first six months of $50,301. This year, for the first three months the figures were $29,817, and for the next three months, April, May and June, $23,548, making a total of $53,365, or an increase of $13,050 in six months.

Due to City's Growth. Postmaster Cunningham, in speaking of this increase, stated: "It is due to two things, first, the increase in population in the city, and the increase of the amount of business done by local merchants and factories, and second, to the more thorough understanding by merchants and others of the business done by the postoffice and the advantages of delivery, especially in the case of the C. O. D. system. Of course, the Samson Tractor company has had much to do with the increase, both by the business that they do, and by the effect it has upon the city."

C. O. D. Business Greater. "The large C. O. D. increase is due to the fact that more and more people are using the system, especially merchants, who find it is cheaper, both to them and to their patrons, to deliver by this means. A number of our leading merchandise stores are sending out a load of packages, C. O. D., every day."

The following figures for the year ending in July were given out: The total registers for the year ending July 1, 1919, amounted to 9,674, and for this year, 17,294, an increase of almost 100 per cent. For no accountable reason, the number of insured persons was less, for 1919 being 52,516 and for 1920, 53,029.

The C. O. D. packages increase was more than 400 per cent. The number for 1919 was 5,233, and for 1920, 18,757.

NEW SIGN LARGEST IN THIS SECTION

Erection of two huge 50-foot electric signs was started on the roof of the Parker Pen company's new building yesterday. With letters eight feet high, the signs will be seen at a distance of several miles into the country when completed. It is the largest electric sign outside of Chicago or Milwaukee.

There will be 613 small special sign lamps in the 20 great letters. They will be flushers reading: "PARKER PENS."

First the word "Parker" will light up and then "Pens." Then both will go out and on the next contact both will light.

"Our purpose in erecting such a large sign," said George S. Parker, head of the fountain pen company, "is not that we think it will be of much value as local advertising, but it will make an impression upon the minds of people going through on trains. They will tell others of the great Parker sign that they saw at Janesville and it will thus link up the Parker company with Janesville and Janesville with the Parker company."

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Ladies: Write to Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please state how to steam the face? I have noticed that you have advised steaming, but you have not told how to do it. I don't know how to go about it.

Face steaming is a method of treatment that may be highly beneficial or injurious, according as it is done. Too frequent applications of steam will cause wrinkles, by opening the skin flabby, but an occasional bath of this kind serves the purpose of opening the pores to remove dust and helping to keep the skin supple and in good condition.

A vessel which can be kept just below the boiling point should be placed over an alcohol lamp or gas plate. The vessel should have a fairly large surface with enough water in it to throw out a good volume of steam.

Remember, before going through this cleansing experience, that both the face and the skin should be so the temperature of the water must be a trifle lower than the boiling point, yet sufficiently high to throw out heat that will generate perspiration.

After everything is arranged for the bath the face should be well rubbed with cold cream, applying it thickly with the finger tips and rubbing vigorously in rotary motion over the entire face, making the upward movement of the strokes stronger than the downward. This will take at least five minutes, and longer if properly done. The bath should then be ready and the face bent over, holding a towel so the steam is thrown directly on the skin. It is necessary to rest the face to breathe, the mouth may be uncovered for about two seconds.

After the face is hot, and perspiration starts, it should be wiped with soft old linen to remove the grease, and then the face should be steamed again. The wiping is repeated until there is no trace of grease. Fifteen or twenty minutes should be devoted to the bath, and at the end of the period the face must be wiped for the last time. For the final treatment cold water, not be dashed over to tighten the skin, and if there is no eruption an excellent lotion, made from a pint of alcohol and an ounce each of spirits of camphor and spirits of ammonia, and a half ounce of sea salt, with enough boiling water to make a pint, may be applied to the face. This is not used until it is cold, and then the skin is soaked with it. It is an excellent tonic, and may be massaged into the neck, throat and arms, as well as the face.

Steaming by this method should not be resorted to oftener than once a week. Carefully done, it will soften and refine the skin and clear the complexion.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am an extra girl whom everyone likes but nobody loves. I go with a certain crowd of young people and I know they all like me because they try so hard to include me in whatever they do. These of the couples are married, but the three single men take turns taking me places. Sometimes one asks me and the next time another.

Do you think I ought to accept these kind invitations? I can't help feeling that the boys would rather take some one else, but they feel sorry for me and don't want to hurt my feelings by slighting me. I don't want to think I am selfish enough so that they would not invite you repeatedly just to spare your feelings. The crowd likes you, as you yourself realize. They consider you good company and necessary to their enjoyment. Have a good time with your friends until some one finds you who more than cares.

MARRIAGE

that is, all but Aunt Cecelia. She just lay and looked at the moon, and was very still.

It was just as we were having quite a heated argument about the moral obligations of children, etc., that there was a chug-chug along the road and a car stopped near the house. Brave women though we were, we all jumped, and aunt gave a truly feminine scream.

Two deep, masculine voices were heading for the peaceful little corner, and instinctively we drew back within the shadow of the porch, and Dorry ran for the garden hose!

Then the forms advanced, and a voice called tenderly, "Cecelia, are you there?" I saw my aunt run down the path and throw herself into the arms of her lover, and we into the lead report of a kiss.

The other person with him was Harvey. It appears that he had called at my house to find Jean's address and met Jeffery there, who was just starting for Hope Hamlet, (having already yearned for his Cecelia.) so they came along together.

Dorry and I went off for a little walk in the moonlight together, feeling very independent and superior to the two couples left behind us, of course.
